

Practical computations with hyperbolic 3-manifolds

Nathan Dunfield, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign

I will outline the theory and practice of computing invariants of hyperbolic 3-manifolds using tools such SnapPy, snap, and SageMath, touching on both numerical methods (including rigorous ones) and exact methods. A substantial part of the talk will be devoted to live demonstrations of these programs running in a prebuilt and easy to install container.