

Well posedness for non linear transport models

Pierre-Emmanuel Jabin, Université de Nice Sophia Antipolis

Several models have recently been introduced in various applied settings, from chemotaxis to pedestrian transport. Those equations include local non linear effects and can be seen as hybrid models between linear transport equations and scalar conservation laws. We introduce new quantitative, explicit estimates that imply well posedness.