A Random Walk Runs Through It: A Portfolio of Probabilistic Pictures

Christopher Bishop, Stony Brook University

Over the last 30 years I have created a number of illustrations for papers, lectures, numerical experiments , or for my own amusement. I plan to pick a few of my favorites (based on aesthetics or the underlying math) and explain how and why they were created. Most of the selections will have some connection to random walks, Brownian motion or harmonic measure