

Nonspherical Bubble Clusters

John Sullivan, TU Berlin

We consider the geometry of clusters of soap bubbles. In 2D, all clusters are built out of circular arcs. In higher dimensions, the analog seems to be true of small clusters -- stable clusters are built out of pieces of spheres. However, we also exhibit a stable cluster of 6 bubbles in 3D which is nonspherical.