

Computation and inverse problems for linear response.

Mark Pollicott, University of Warwick

We will describe two simple problems on the dependence of the invariant density on the perturbation of an expanding map of the circle. The first is to get accurate numerical estimates on the first order change of the density. The second is to construct first order perturbations of the map which correspond to prescribed first order perturbations in the density.