

A potpourri of nonlinear algebra

Christopher Hillar, University of California, Berkeley

I will present several examples demonstrating that solving structured polynomial systems has great potential for producing new and interesting mathematics. Along the way, I will present several open conjectures and problems in nonlinear algebra.