

Parameter investigation and biological systems

Wenrui Hao, University of Notre Dame

This talk will cover some recent progress on parameter study on nonlinear partial differential equations (PDEs) arising from biology. This parameter study is based on homotopy continuation method, and makes use of polynomial systems (with thousands of variables) arising by discretization. It includes bifurcation, parameter region for identifying the number of stable steady states, and risk map for treatment of biological diseases.