

Spaces of directed paths

Yuliy Baryshnikov, University of Illinois

Fix an open sharp cone in Euclidean space, and some collection of obstacles, and consider the space of directed paths - the paths that increase with respect to the cone - avoiding the obstacles. Such spaces arise in concurrency analysis in CS and many other contexts. I will discuss their topology.