Pedestrian models: game theoretic versus mechanistic view points
Pierre Degond, Imperial College London

We will develop an agent based model for pedestrians based on collision anticipation and rational behavior. We will propose a coarse-graining methodology for this model based on analogy between thermodynamical equilibria in kinetic theory and Nash equilibria in game theory.