

Zeta functions of varieties: Tools and Applications

Kiran Kedlaya, University of California, San Diego

Recently, it has become feasible to compute the zeta functions of algebraic varieties over finite fields in many more cases than before. We will survey some examples of new computations and some questions which it is now possible to investigate using numerical data.